Price Supports Tied To Certification

Tobacco producers must certify that they have not used pesticide products containing DDT and TDE on their 1970 crop tobacco plantings in order to be eligible for price supports on the product this year, J. P. Alvis, Jr., Chairman of the Appomattox County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee announced.

Growers were urged by Mr. Alvis to use alternate materials which are available and have been demonstrated to be effective in controlling plant pests.

U. S. exports of tobacco face sharp reduction if DDT and TDE use continues, Mr. Alvis explained. Approximately 35 per cent of all U. S. grown tobacco is exported, and several foreign countries that are now large importers of our tobacco have indicated that they will set very narrow DDT and TDE tolerances on cured leaf. These restrictions are scheduled to become effective in January, 1973.

It is essential for growers to meet these standards now, Mr. Alvis said, because most of the 1970 crop that moves under loan will not likely be sold and exported prior to 1973. This is because tobacco is usually stored and aged for extended periods before being used.

14-15 Year Olds Can Train For Employment

The child labor regulations dealing with hazardous occupations in agriculture have been revised effective Feb. 6, 1970. The new regulations prohibit youth under 16 years of age from operating tractors and other farm machines until they have met certain qualifications. The Cooperative Extension Service is permitted to issue exemption certificates to 14 and 15 year old youth to operate tractors and certain farm machines provided they have completed a training course.

Any youth 14 and 15 years of age who are interested in employment as tractor and machinery operators should enroll and complete training for an extemption certificate. If you are interested in taking this training, please contact the County Extension Office.

Surrender triangle in the old village of Appomattox Court House, where defeated Confederate soldiers stacked arms on April 12, 1865

1865 - 1970

105 Years Since Surrender

By: Charles H. Meadows, Member, Interpretive Staff, Appomattox Court House National Historical Park, Appomattox, Virginia.

Although everyone has heard of the surrender of General Lee to General Grant, on April 9, 1865, not many are acquainted with the formal surrender that occurred three days later on April 12th; the fourth anniversary of the firing upon Fort Sumpter.

General Johua L. Chamberlain was appointed by General Grant to receive the surrendered arms and battle flags. The place selected for the ceremony was the stage road in the eastern end of the village of Appomattox Court House. Lee and Grant had met in the McLean House three days earlier and worked out the details, now they were to be carried out.

Just over the brow of the hill at a place known today as the surrender triangle, the Confederate soldiers halted and on orders from their officers stacked their muskets, their battleflags and laid down their ammunition boxes and other public property according to Grant's terms.

Later that afternoon the Rebel soldiers formed ranks for the last time before disbanding forever. Their unit comanders read to them General Lee's farewell address. Then, as General Grant had promised, each man was given a parole, saying he could return home and would not be disturbed by federal authorities. The men were then dismissed, free to go home. All one soldier, Charles H, Sweeney, had to do to get home was walk across the road. Most however, had to go much father.

. . . it is easy to remember General Lee and General Grant but we should remember, also, the thousands of gun-toting soldiers in blue and grey that time and history had forgotten to name.
